Orland Park P. T. A. Minstrel Big Success

The "Dixie Dandy" Minstrel Show, sponsored by the Orland Park P. T. A., was presented at the school auditorium last Thursday and Friday evenings before capacity audiences.

The show was trained by Prudence Neff Thomas of Orland Park, who had charge of the musical direction, and Geo. Kohl of Chicago, who acted also as an end man together with Ray Parker of Chicago, Harold Kinney, Al. Klein, Earl Reish, and Orville Schmadeke, of Orland Park. Their funny jokes, comical antics, and lively songs brought down the house and sent the crowd home holding their sides.

Leonard Kay admirably filled the role of interlocutor.

The ballad singers, Clarisse Mahaffay, Lillian Jennings, Wade Thomas, and Arthur Wood delighted the audience with their popular and old-time songs.

The chorus, comprising Hilda Cox, Harriet Gee, Marie Heiting, Nina Kay, Gladys Kesser, Esther Klein, Florence Knox, Mollie Reish, Bessie Uthe, Clara Uthe, Esther Neff, Marguerite Newcomb, Adella Schmadeke, Lucile Schmadeke, Eleanor Waje, Agnes Weller, Elsworth Bechtloff, Ike Cleveland, Geo. Cox, James Creer, Jimmy Davidson, Royal Glahn, Harry Heiting, Billy Newcomb and Lawrence Uthe, gave commendable support and lent much to the success of the performances.

The following specialty acts were also introduced: a quartette, composed of Messers Klein, Reish, Thomas, and Wood sang an exceedingly pleasing group of songs. A screamingly funny sketch, entitled, "Dr. Cut-up" was enacted by James Creer and Ike Cleveland. Gordon Kay, Merrill Cooper, and Jim Pomeroy, impersonating darky boys, played "Old Black Joe" on saxophones and alto horn, with the male quartette joining in the chorus. Clever dance interpretations were presented by Marguerite Newcomb and Jane Pomeroy of Orland Park, and Leona Stevens, Ann Kerr, and Margaret Strayhorn of Harvey. Harlan Tarbell, well-known magician of Chicago, performed a number of unique tricks.

All were enthusiastically received. Preceding the specialties a beautiful basket of chrysanthemums was presented to Mrs. Thomas.

It was a production that will be long remembered and it is to be hoped that we may be given more such treats.

The committee in charge, report that financially also the show was a complete success.

After the performance Friday evening, the cast enjoyed a little party at which there were refreshments and dancing.

S. W. Chamber of Commerce Meeting Date Creates Storm

The Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce of the Orland territory has had a stormy time the past week.

To begin with Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland Park and Edward Cowan of Palos Park, the latter being the president of the organization, got into a hot argument at the meeting of the Orland Park village board Monday night when Mr. Cowan announced that the annual meeting of the organization which was to have been held at the Orland Park school auditorium December 10th, would have to be held December 9th, on account of the school being in use for December 10th and that the secretary, John Klein had mailed out 8000 notices to the effect that the annual meeting would be held Dec. 9th. At this point Dr. Schussler said that if the meeting were held Dec. 9th it would be illegal as it would be in violation of the constitution and by laws of the organization. Mr. Cowan said that as the notices had been mailed the meeting would have to be held on the date given in the notices.

According to the statement of Mr. Cowan when the members of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce appeared at the Orland Park school Tuesday night they were met at the door by Sherman S. Knox, a member of the school board who advised them that they could not meet at the school as it was engaged for that evening. President Cowan says that a meeting of the organization was held out doors and adjourned to meet at the Palos Park Club house, Tuesday evening, December 16th. Mr. Cowan says that James E. Creer, president of the Orland Park school board had given his sanction for the use of the school to John Klein, secretary of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce for Tuesday, December 9th.

Tinley Passes Septic Tank Ordinance

The Tinley Park village board has passed an ordinance that every single family dwelling in the village must have a septic tank installed for the purpose of treating domestic sewage and household waste. These septic tanks must be approved first by the mayor and aldermen before they can be installed. These tanks are to take place of a sewer as the village cannot afford to put in a sewer system at present. All stores

C. M. Cleveland Offers Wolf Road Right of Way

The matter of securing the needed right of way for carrying on the paving of Wolf road from the Hickory Creek bridge south to the Lincoln highway, is nearing to the goal. The past week, C. M. Cleveland has notified Fred Francis, chairman of the Will County Bond Issue Committee that he is ready to sign dedication papers for a right of way thru his pasture land which would mean that the right of way would not go straight thru Mr. Cleveland's timber land as originally surveyed, but will swing slightly toward the east and come out east of the Cleveland school house.

SANTA COMING TO TINLEY BY AIR

By Trudie N. Swisher
SANTA

He's a nice old fellow, yes a nice old fellow
And we love him, yes we do!
He will not forget us, no he'll not forget us,
Our SANTA good and true.

And how would we dare to print the above jingle, if it were not true that our program chairman, Mrs. Alice Anderson had received a letter from Old Santa himself. Yes indeed, and such a jolly message as it was, telling just how, and when, he expects to arrive in Tinley Park.

Here are the facts:

Santa will reach the outskirts of Tinley Park, by aeroplane Monday evening, December 22, 1930 and be rushed by automobile to the park, reaching the Christmas tree at 7:30 p. m. Here he expects to find all the little girls and boys waiting and singing the good old carols. If you do not know the words to the song, "Holy Night", learn them at once, for this is one of the songs old Santa wants to hear. Don't disappoint him, for he may have a little surprise for you all.

Don't forget our next regular meeting, to be held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Klepper, December 19 at 2 p. m. If you can not be present, kindly notify the hostess.

The following letter was received by our president:

December 3, 1930

Don't forget to go and see the beautiful poinsettia at the home of Mrs. Clara Goessel. This is how the flower got its name:

The poinsettia, so popular during the holiday season, is named for Joel Roberts Poinsett of South Carolina, the first United States ambassador to Mexico. He brought it into our country from Mexico.

FIREBUGS VISIT NEW LENOX

Fear that an arson fiend is again at work in New Lenox township was expressed when a dwelling and a barn were destroyed by fire Monday night.

The dwelling, a six-room frame bungalow, was located a mile and one-half northeast of New Lenox. It was owned by Max Brodsky, of Chicago, and has recently been completed. It was unoccupied, being located on a chicken farm in a section of New Lenox township recently devoted for this purpose.

A large barn, 60 by 80 feet, located on the Needham Cooper farm one mile north of New Lenox, was destroyed. This building was the only structure on the farm and was being used by Henry Yunker, rodeo show man, in which were stored 40 tons of hay.

The light from the fire attracted farmers for miles around. While this building was burning a blaze was seen to start in the Brodsky bungalow a few minutes later.

Farmers succeeded in keeping the fire from the bungalow spreading to the poultry house on the Brodsky farm. The barn on the Cooper farm was built in 1840.

Dr. W. R. Schussler Heads S. W. Chamber of Commerce

Sherman S. Knox newly elected secretary of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce gives the following account of the annual meeting of the organization which took place December 10, at Orland Park village hall:

The annual meeting of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce was held in the Village hall, Orland Park, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 10th as provided for in the by-laws of the organization. A controversy had arisen as to the date of the meeting which resulted in considerable mis-understanding. According to the by-laws it is mandatory to hold the meetings on the 2nd Wednesday of December, which in this case fell on December 10th. This date had been further confirmed and accepted at a previous meeting of the Chamber held a few weeks ago. Through a mis-interpretation of the powers of the President and Secretary, President Cowan had changed the date of the meeting to Tuesday, Dec. 9th, in contradiction to the mandate of the previous meeting and of the by-laws. Affairs were further complicated by a mis-understanding as to the availability of the Orland School house for meeting purposes on the date set by Mr. Cowan. The school had already been engaged by the American Legion which holds to regular meeting on this night and the auditorium was in use for a high school party and dance.

Consequently, when President Cowan and about a dozen members appeared at the school house in response to his call, they found there was no space available for meeting purposes. Sherman S. Knox, secretary of the school board so informed Mr. Cowan and remonstrated against the calling of a meeting in the manner in which it was done and advised that such a meeting, if held, would be illegal. However, a canvass of Cowan and his followers was held on the school steps and they decided to postpone the meeting until Dec. 16, at the Palos Club House.

Accordingly on Wednesday evening, Dec. 10, as provided for in the by-laws and advertised to the members, the annual meeting was called in the Village hall. In the absence of the President and Secretary, Vice-president W. R. Schussler was in the chair. Sherman S. Knox was elected temporary secretary. There being more than the necessary quorum present, the Chamber proceeded to the business of the annual meeting.

On the call for committee reports Dr. Schussler as chairman of the right-of-way committee, submitted a report in detail as to what has been accomplished and outlined the plans for the future.

The election of officers being the next routine business, proceeded with dispatch and unanimity.

Dr. W. R. Schussler was elected President, Fred Eilers of Chicago Ridge as vice President and W. T. Beagley of Orland Park as treasurer and Sherman S. Knox as secretary.

The newly elected officers assumed their respective stations and commenced work on new business.

A motion was made and carried creating two right-of-way action committees, one to take care of matters pertaining to the Southwest highway and the other for Wolf Road and the president was authorized to make the committee appointments in conformity to the by-laws.

The next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce is set for Wednesday January 14th at which time a definite plan of action will be worked out. We hope to have Senator Barr of Will county and Senator Huebsch of Cook county as well as commissioners and supervisors of both counties present, and it is expected that the right-of-way question will be definitely settled.

the tin foil campaign. There are gaily decorated boxes in the stores and school and we are wondering if they will soon be filled.

"Our President's Message for 1931"

"As this is our last 1930 P. T. A. meeting, don't we, as an association, wonder what is in store for us during the coming year?"

"Most individuals make various New Year's resolutions, and are optimistic enough to hope for success and happiness. Why not then, as an association, make a resolution to have the Christmas spirit guide us through the entire New Year, that is, have that feeling of peace and good will present."

If there are any ha'chets, why not bury them, and get out our trumpets and blow together in unison, as much as possible, which will most assuredly ensure 1931 Tinley Park's Parent-Teachers Association's success and happiness."

Church Night Christmas Party

In place of the regular monthly church and community night, the Orland Park M. E. church will hold an old fashion Christmas party. The regular evening for the Church night is the third Wednesday of the month but because of this combination party it will be held Tuesday evening December 16.

Following the supper there will be a period of community singing of Christmas carols. The group will then be divided. The church will then be decorated for Christmas. The Christmas tree will also be decorated and everything put in shape for the Christmas eve program. There will also be games for the children and entertainment for the adults.

This will be an old fashion party in which every one will assist in the preparation for the Christmas season in this getting into the spirit of the season. All are invited to attend. As this is a family party the children are asked to be accompanied by their parents.

Norman Hartman Dies Following Serious Operation

A pall of gloom was cast over the Mokena and Tinley Park communities this week by the sudden death of Norman Hartman, a popular student of the Mokena high school. Mr. Hartman was taken ill quite suddenly about ten days ago and underwent several operations at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet in a vain effort to save his life. He died in the hospital at 6:20 p. m., December 10th.

He was taking a leading part in a play which the Young People's Society of the Immanuel Lutheran church of Mokena were planning to put on the forepart of this month, when he was taken ill. His sudden illness and death is a great shock to his legion of friends.

Two Historic Christmas Days

Washington and Lafayette at Valley Forge

Surrender of the Hessian Troops to General Washington

Picture of "Surrender of Hessian Troops," courtesy the Mabel Brady Garvin Institute of American Arts and Sciences, Yale University. Other pictures, courtesy George Washington Bicentennial Commission for the Celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington—1932.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AS THE time draws nearer for the observance in 1932 of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, it is worthy of comment that the man, who is to be honored in a nation-wide celebration only a little more than a year hence, was the central figure in two of the most historic Christmas days in all American history.

One of them was in 1776 and the story of it is so familiar to all Americans that it needs retelling here only in the barest outline—how on Christmas eve Washington took supper at General Greene's headquarters and there perfected his plans for crossing the Delaware river the next day and attacking the British outpost at Trenton, N. J., held by a force of approximately 1,000 Hessians under the command of Colonel Rall, because he believed that these Germans, busy with their Christmas feasting and merrymaking, would fall easy victims to a surprise attack.

The crossing of the river began at six o'clock Christmas evening. Washington planned to have his entire army on the Jersey shore by midnight and begin the march to Trenton by one o'clock so that he could attack the Hessians just before dawn. But the ice-filled river threatened to upset all his plans and some of his officers were for calling off the expedition entirely. Washington, however, resolved to carry it through and although the crossing took no less than ten hours, it was finally accomplished and four o'clock in the morning found his army drawn up on the New Jersey side ready for the seven-mile march to Trenton.

So away they went, with sleet and snow beating upon their backs, and leaving bloody footprints in the snow as they marched. Two other divisions of Washington's army, which were to co-operate in the attack, had failed to cross the river and his force consisted of between 2,300 and 2,400 men. True, Rall had only about 1,000 Hessians at Trenton, but if his patrols discovered Washington's advance he could fight a defensive engagement until aid came.

Fortunately for the cause of American liberty, however, a patrol sent out early in the morning by one of Rall's subordinates (the commander himself was sleeping off his Christmas celebration) did not go far enough and the Americans were at the outskirts of Trenton before they were discovered. Despite the surprise, the Hessians rallied and put up a stubborn defense for a short time, but it was hopeless. Rall was mortally wounded and died the following night. Twenty-two of the Hessians were killed outright, 28 so badly wounded that they were left in Trenton and 56 others carried along with the victorious Americans as they retired across the river with their 868 prisoners. Washington's loss was four wounded and not a man killed! His spectacular victory was a tonic to the discouraged patriots. Among "Christmas gifts," the achievement at Trenton must be rated among the most splendid of all time.

But if Christmas day of 1776 was a bright one for Washington and his fellow countrymen, the Christmas day of 1777 was correspondingly dark. The British had taken Philadelphia, the Continental army was but a shadow of a fighting force, a plot to remove Washington from command had been narrowly averted, congress was demoralized and the patriot cause was at a low ebb. Both for its defensive value and as a potential threat against Philadelphia, Washington had decided to move his army to Valley Forge from Whitemarsh where it was stationed at the beginning of December, 1777. So he took up the 19-mile march and again there were footprints in the snow stained with red. Arriving at Valley Forge on December 19, his army of ragged, half-starved Continentals went into the winter camp which has made the name Valley Forge forever famous as a symbol of suffering and deathless devotion to a cause. On Christmas day Washington in his orderly book noted that the army was huddled for the winter in some 1,200 cabins.

But lest that statement bring up a picture of an army snugly housed in comfortable barracks, let it be recorded that the huts were little more than piles of logs thrown up hastily around holes dug in the ground, the spaces between the logs plastered with mud. The roofs were slabs but they were leaky and water poured in on the heads of their inhabitants as well as seeped through the walls, unless they had had foresight or strength enough to dig drain ditches around the outside.

Add to such a situation the misery of hunger and sickness and you have a picture of the horror that was Valley Forge. For the commissary of the Continental army, neglected by a vacillating and bickering congress, had fallen down on its job entirely. On December 23 the commander in chief wrote to the president of congress that out of about 11,000 men "we have by return this day made, no less than 2,989 men now in camp unfit for duty because they are barefoot and otherwise naked." He also reported that on this same day the army had "not a single hoof of any kind to slaughter and not more than twenty-five barrels of flour." Few men had more than one shirt, "many only the moiety of one and some none at all." Owing to the lack of blankets numbers had to sit up all night by fires.

Under such conditions it is only too easy to imagine what a cheerless Christmas day it was that Washington and his men spent in 1777 at Valley Forge.

SAUL OF TARSUS: HOW A PHARISEE BECAME A CHRISTIAN

GOLDEN TEXT—Acts 22:3-15.
I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ.

PRIMARY TOPIC—An Enemy Who Became a Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—An Enemy Who Became a Friend.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conversion: Its Nature and Effect.

I. Saul's Training as a Pharisee (vv. 3, 4).

1. Taught to love his own nation. ("I am a Jew.") The Pharisees were the nationalists of their day. Saul being a strict Pharisee was a patriot.

2. Taught to love God's Law. "Taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers." Love for the Bible is a valuable asset in life. One may misinterpret the Bible and dangerously misapply it, but if there is love for it, he may yet come into right relation to it.

3. "Was zealous toward God." The root meaning of the word "zealous" is "to boil." It signifies a passion for God and his work.

4. Was conscientious (Acts 26:9, 10). Saul was conscientious in his opposition to Jesus. He regarded Jesus as an imposter. While Saul is to be condemned for his attitude toward Jesus, he is to be praised for responding to the dictates of his conscience. Conscience is the law of life for every man, but should be regulated by God's Word.

II. Saul's Burning Hatred of Jesus (vv. 4, 5, cf. Acts 9:1, 2).

He knew full well that unless the movement set on foot by Jesus was stopped it would supersede Judaism. However, he was entirely ignorant of the genius of Christianity. He did not know that "the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." Stephen's noble display of faith intensified Saul's hatred of Jesus. It made him more determined than ever to stamp out the Nazarene heresy.

III. Saul Kicking Against the Pricks (vv. 6-11).

The figure here is of an eastern ox driver following the animal with a sharp iron attached to a pole. The ox is prodded along with this instrument, and if it is refractory and kicks against this iron, it only injures itself.

1. A light from heaven (v. 6). The time had now come for Jesus to interpose in behalf of his own. Saul is stricken with blindness and falls to the earth.

2. A voice from heaven (v. 7). This was the voice of Jesus saying, "Why persecutest thou me?" Jesus Christ is so closely identified with believers that he regards treatment of them as treatment of himself.

3. Saul's inquiry (vv. 8, 10). "Who art thou, Lord?" "What shall I do, Lord?" The dictator is now willing to be dictated to.

4. A second voice from heaven (vv. 8, 10). In response to Saul's inquiry, Jesus revealed himself, and instructed Saul what to do.

5. Saul entering Damascus (v. 11). This hitherto savage persecutor went humbly into the city, led by attendants. What went on in his soul during three days of blindness and fasting we can only surmise.

IV. Ananias Ministers to Saul (vv. 12-15).

1. Sent by the Lord (Acts 9:10-12). In a vision the Lord showed him that Saul was now a praying man. The name of Saul's host and the number of his street were made known to Ananias.

2. Ananias' hesitancy (Acts 9:13-16). Knowing Saul's violent hatred of Jesus, he was afraid to go near him until he received the divine message.

3. Ananias' message (vv. 13-15).

(1) "Brother Saul, receive thy sight." (v. 13). Sight was given.

(2) "The God of our fathers hath chosen thee" (v. 14). This choice was for three things: a. "That thou shouldst know his will." This is true of every one chosen by the Lord. b. "And see that Just One." The sight of Jesus Christ transformed Saul's life. c. "And hear the voice of his mouth." How wonderful that even a savage persecutor should come to hear the voice of Jesus.

(3) "Thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard" (v. 15).

Choice Is With God

Wretches that we are! to be keeping up jealousies of our Lord, when we should be rejoicing in his love. As if any man could choose Christ before Christ hath chosen him; or any man were more willing to be happy than Christ is to make him happy.—Baxter.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

At the hospital an interne was very businesslike.

"Her husband has identified her. Yes, he is with her now. No, you can't come in—well, only for a moment."

There lay Ernestine in the stiff, long-sleeved, hospital shirt, her hair black between her white face and the white pillow, a nurse beside her counting her respiration, Will crouching there, his face against the covers. Her eyes were opened, flushed with fever. She was talking—pleading—in delirium. Ernestine, the darling sister—in this dreadful place!

"You will all have to go," said the nurse, snapping shut her old-fashioned watch and darting a resentful look at the interne. "We cannot have anybody in this ward after hours. Mr. Todd, you will have to go."

"Ernestine," cried Lillian, and Ernestine said quickly:

"Will's coming. I tell you my name is Briceland B-r-i-c-e-l-a-n-d—I think there's more. The bus ran over me—it leaped at me—"

"She was crushed?" exclaimed Lillian, and the nurse said:

"No—she's just delirious. Please go. Can't we have her moved to a private room? Can't we move her?" It was Loring now.

Will had lifted his face, and he stared at Ernestine and gently smoothed her cheek, while her bright eyes turned on him.

"Papa—you must find Will—he'll worry," she urged him.

"I can't say about moving her. You'll have to see the floor doctor. She is very ill to be moved—please leave the ward now."

The nurse was definite. Training and authority were behind her, and they withdrew. Even Will had to leave her, but Ernestine made such an outcry that the nurse permitted him to come back until Loring should make arrangements to move Ernestine.

Lillian found herself in a tiny reception room furnished barely. Loring had gone to the office, Mrs. Bennett to the phone booth downstairs. For a moment Lillian thought she was going to be sick. She clung desperately to the arms of the chair. She was the only woman in the room. A black man stood near her, twisting a cloth cap in his hands, his lips moving soundlessly. There was another man, shabby, unclean, suffering in patient silence, and they were joined by a third and then a fourth vague quiet figure.

Lillian's feelings were not of pity but revulsion. She could not bear it—Ernestine here with the scum of the earth—mamma's baby—their beauty—in this place that smelled of lye, that was full of the sounds of sickness and suffering as purgatory is full of groans. This place was hell, it was nightmare. There came from the streets the clang of an ambulance—and a stretcher moved in the hall. Loring was beside her, beckoning.

"We are taking her to the Presbyterian hospital. They'll have a room and a nurse for her when we get there. Also a good doctor."

Lillian followed him in confusion. The ambulance she had heard was for Ernestine. The taxi threaded after it through the streets, and again there was delay. Mrs. Bennett left them to go back home. Will was with Ernestine and the stretcher. But now, at last, a small freshly painted room, as clean as a scalded dish, a high narrow bed, by an open window, an electric fan on a white dressing table, a chair or two, and a graduate nurse, capable, cool. There was a doctor, too.

Lillian stood just inside the door. The doctor was silent for a long time, examining Ernestine, reading the copy of the chart that had been sent with her.

"Uremia—and some albumen," he said as though any of them knew what he meant. "The baby will be premature—if we can get her through her confinement now swiftly, she'll be all right. When did you say she was expectant?"

Will named the date. The doctor nodded with satisfaction as though his worst fears were confirmed.

"Well, it's a nasty case," he said, "but perhaps we shall pull her through. Miss Nana"—he turned to the nurse with a rapid fire of instructions and requests and laid his coat aside.

"Now—there's nothing any of you can do but give us elbow room and quiet. She's already had two convulsions. When the next comes we shall be ready for her—" The horrid word shot through Lillian's mind like a sword thrust. No—no—only idiot children—only diseased and terrible people—only the poor and helpless were so afflicted. Not Ernestine—oh, God—not Ernestine!

The doctor put them out with deliberate firmness, allowing Will to stay.

"If you go across the street, there's a nice little hotel there. Tell the clerk I sent you, and go to bed. Miss Nana will call you if there's any change, or if she's delivered. The battle is ours, now."

Lillian knew that it was as hard for Loring as it was for her to accept this dismissal and leave Will behind. Will was so futile! He would have left her in that other dreadful place.

In silence they crossed the street, registered at the hotel, and were assigned a room. They moved about in silent misery, looking out of the windows at the walls of the hospital.

"Did you know Will lost his job?" Loring hesitated. "Yes," he said at last. "I knew it."

"But why—" "I didn't know how Ernestine would take it, if I butted in. I thought she would let us know if she needed us."

"You know how proud she is—" Loring moved restlessly. "I think I'll go back to the hospital. You stay here. No need for both of us to go. I'll call you if you're needed."

Weary and confused, Lillian took off her clothes, bathed in the tiny bathroom and lay down across the bed, partly dressed again. Her whole thought was strained at first toward the hospital and the possible issue of Ernestine's illness. Then her thoughts turned and turned, from Loring to Ernestine, to Will, to mamma and papa and Ernestine and back to mamma again. Mamma had allowed papa and Loring to dictate to her about Will's father. That had really separated Ernestine from them long ago. They had offered Ernestine their love and help only at the price of betrayal of her marriage. Tears came to Lillian, and eventually, tired and sad, she fell asleep.

Daylight streaming over her bed awakened her. She rose, dressed, went across to the hospital and asked for

She Sat There and Watched Him Prepare Supper.

Will, wondering as she did so whether or not she should have asked for Loring.

Will came to her in the reception room, looking at her from dull heavy eyes, silent, waiting.

"How is Ernestine, Will?" she asked him softly.

"She is still very ill," he answered, and added as an afterthought: "The baby is a girl."

He was exhausted, unshaven, sad and awry. As he stood there looking vaguely about him he seemed to Lillian the most forlorn and helpless human being she had ever seen. She pitied him, but he vexed her.

"Oh, Will," she said impulsively, "you shouldn't have allowed Ernestine to have this other baby—so soon, when you weren't prepared. You should have protected her." He averted his face, but she saw his flush.

"I've got to go back upstairs," he said, and added, as he turned to the door, "Loring has already lectured me on birth control. He's left the hospital. You must have missed him."

Lillian was ashamed. She had not intended to say such a thing. It was none of their business, really. At the hotel she stopped at the desk for the key, but Loring had it. She went up in the quiet elevator. When she opened the unlocked door of their room and went in, Loring was lying back in a chair by the open window, his hat on the floor beside him, his collar and tie lying upon it. He was staring straight before him, and when Lillian came to his side he looked up at her with a piteous expression.

For a moment, standing there, a dart of such pain went through Lillian that she cried out. This was what Ernestine could do to Loring. She knew, with a gripping pang of conviction, that nothing that could ever happen to her would cause him such anguish—such rout. This was what Will meant when he said that he knew what was the matter with Loring! She fell on her knees beside him, sobbing, and laid her face upon his knee. His hand fell on her shoulders. He mistook her fear and pain. "She'll be all right, Lillian," he whispered. "God grant she will! The doctor said that a day or two will tell it's uremic poisoning."

He sat forward in his chair, and his clenched hand fell on one knee, while the other arm held her convulsively.

"Thank God you weren't there. Thank God you will never know how she suffered. Will fainted once, and the nurse brought me into the room. They were fighting death like a physical foe. I helped to hold her—" He gave a stifled cry and tore the buttons from his shirt as he expanded his lungs against the crushing fear that lay upon him.

"Oh, Lillian," he cried to his wife, "I don't see how she can live—after last night. The doctor thinks she will, and so does Doctor Grey. He's with her now. But I don't see how she can survive that struggle. But one thing is settled for us, for ever." He pulled her tear-wet face up from his knee, and looked at her with blazing eyes. "You and I will have to be enough. No child is worth such anguish. No life is worth—death. No children—for us."

She hid her face against him. Her arms held him close.

"I don't care, if only you will love me."

He pressed her to him but his eyes had flown to the windows of the hospital, and she felt a tremor pass through his big frame.

Ernestine stayed in the hospital until the baby was a month old. Will borrowed the money from Mr. Poole and paid the hospital bill, paid the nurse and the two doctors, the day she was to be discharged. Loring protested in vain. The removal to the expensive private hospital had been his suggestion—it was he who got the nurse, who got the two doctors; he had planned to meet all these expenses. But Will was deaf to him. He was going to pay Ernestine's hospital bill, he declared, if he had to rob a bank. What business was it of Loring's? It was Will's wife—Will's child.

Legally the debt was Todd's. There was nothing that could be done about it, but the argument increased the bad blood between the men. Ernestine wanted to go to her own home, she told Lillian. Mamma was hurrying back from Europe. The house at the lake was closed. Lillian remonstrated with Ernestine's determination to go back to the house out in Mayfair.

"But what will you do?" she asked, and her face grew red. "Will isn't even working."

"Yes, I am," said Will. "I started today. Mr. Poole is going to open an independent studio, and I am going to work for him. He's got hold of the copyrights to his old strip and we are going to syndicate it ourselves. It will bring us in a lot of money. I'm to get fifty dollars a week to begin with . . . and we'll be all right."

Lillian's dismay was increased, not diminished, by this news. The combination of Will and Mr. Poole was worse than nothing, it appeared to her. "I don't know what mamma will say," she protested feebly, but neither Ernestine nor Will seemed to be moved by that.

It was a wonderful day when Ernestine went home. All the way home in the taxi Will held the baby in one arm and Ernestine in the other, and his face was shining with joy when at last they stood in their little kitchen, she weak and trembling in his arms. He was starved for her, but he kissed her gently, got the rocker and filled it with cushions and placed it by the open kitchen door. She sat there and watched him prepare supper.

"Will," she said, when they had eaten, and he had closed the door against the fall dusk, "you're like you used to be. You're like you were that day we met upon the street, when I first fell in love with you. Tell me, what is it?"

"The new job, I guess. I'm crazy about it, Ernestine. In the first place, to be working again is good—and to be working for John Poole. And then, Ernestine, I think we're going to do it—I believe we'll make a success—a big one."

His enthusiasm was boundless. While he washed the dishes he talked to her, and then they put the children to bed, and he drew Ernestine onto his knees.

"Tell me, Ernestine—it was an ungodly business—but you aren't sorry, are you? Now that you're both home again—you're glad we've got her—aren't you?"

They sat looking at the baby. Will pressed his cheek against Ernestine's shoulder.

"Tell me," he implored her. Ernestine understood his need for assurance. He was still suffering from the humiliation Lillian and Loring had heaped on him.

"They said—I shouldn't have allowed—allowed," he exclaimed sharply at the word. "I never thought about it."

"We're married, aren't we?" asked Ernestine, and as his bright look questioned her she shook her head a little.

"That's all," she said. "That's the answer. I'm your wife—I love you—of course I'm glad."

He kissed her passionately. It seemed so long since she had been in his arms like this—close, close.

"Oh, Ernestine," he said, "I don't deserve you. The future is uncertain. But if ever a wife deserved a good husband, you do. But, sweetheart, it's hard, it's been harder for you than for me; don't think I don't know it. But it's been worth the risk, hasn't it?"

"As long as we hold together," she whispered. "As long as we love."

And he poured his kisses upon her thin flushed face. "I'll make up to you for everything—you'll never be sorry," he told her. And she lay against him, yielding, trembling and in love, forgetting everything else for him as she had forgotten again and again.

Educator Refuses to See Limit on Learning

Instances of elderly people who have accomplished prodigies of learning are frequently adduced as encouragement to the average person of mature years. If so-and-so, the famous musician, could learn Hebrew at eighty, then John Smith need not despair of mastering any subject he may fancy, even though his years of youthful vigor in acquisition may be long behind him. Thus the argument has run, probably without quite convincing John Smith. For he has felt, as most of us feel, an increasing difficulty of concentration and retention as his school and college years have receded into the past.

Dr. Herbert Sorenson of the University of Minnesota has been making experiments and he says that the only trouble with John Smith's mind

THE QUESTION
What modern invention is the greatest boon to the housewife?
(Submitted by Margaret E. Morrissey, 221 S. La Salle st.)

THE PLACE
222 st. and Cicero ave.

THE ANSWERS
Miss Norma Higgins, 5442 Rice st., machine operator: "The vacuum cleaner is the housewife's greatest blessing. The cleaner saves time and energy. It can be handled easily and it does not raise dust. It replaced the broom which required manual labor. The task of sweeping was tedious and the dust which was raised by the broom was both annoying and injurious."

Miss Mae Pelling, 4815 Forest ave., Downers Grove, machine operator: "The automatic dish washer is the housewife's greatest blessing. Nobody likes to wash dishes. It is a dirty and unpleasant job. With an automatic washer all we need do is to place the dishes in the washer and turn on the juice. Housekeeping lost its most objectionable and tedious duty when the dishwasher made its appearance."

Miss Luella Crowe, 325 Shenkton rd., Riverside, machine operator: "The washing machine is the housekeeper's greatest help and time saver. The washer also does the work better. Those who remember when a whole day was passed in washing clothes certainly do appreciate the modern mechanical device. Even the first washing machine, which were operated with a crank, were a blessing to the housewife."

Miss Marie Christensen, 3287 Wrightwood ave., machine operator: "The electric refrigerator, in my opinion, is the most useful modern invention. When we have something which we want to keep from the children we place it in the icebox and lock it. The modern icebox preserves food at an even temperature and permits the housewife to prepare jello and ice cream with a minimum of effort."

Miss Elsie Dudskey, 2645 Prairie ave., Brookfield, machine operator: "In my opinion the electric stove is the greatest boon to the housewife. Coal stoves were a source of constant worry and a producers of dirt and soot. Now all the housewife has to do is to attach the plug to the socket or press a button and she has heat for cooking meals in a hurry."

Imported Gadgets

He Means Well, Poor Fellow

Naturally he wants to play Santa Claus in a big way. Surprise his wife at Christmas! So he worries for weeks and at the last minute—in desperation—he rushes out and buys a gold-plated gadget or a custom-built gewgaw. And a month later it goes up to the attic. . . It's all because he has an idea women don't want something practical.

But—Eyes left for a minute or two and read what five women, picked at random, told the Chicago Daily Times inquiring reporter a short time ago. If your home hasn't all the electrical conveniences it needs, why not change your tactics this Christmas and give your wife something she can really use. Electrical gifts will let her sprint through the housework and be free to enjoy half-holidays she could never dream of taking before.

Here are a few suggestions:

- A Conover Electric Dishwasher—$139.50 cash or $14.67 down*
- A Thor Electric Ironer—$79.50 cash or $8.07 down*
- A "Grayline" Frigidaire with 6 cubic feet storage capacity—$230 cash (delivered ready to plug in) or $10 down*
- A Hotpoint Electric Range—variously priced and purchasable the "Little by Little" way.
- A Thor Spinner Type Washing Machine—$99.75 cash or $10.34 down* the "Little by Little" way.

School Bonds Carry by 861 to 269

Saturday district 143 voted almost four to one for the $119,000 bond issue for the Midlothian school. By January 1 classes will be held in the new building, according to school board members. Unofficial returns were as follows on the bonding proposition:

|                 | For | Against |
|-----------------|-----|---------|
| Midlothian      | 544 | 39      |
| Harding (Posen) | 18  | 165     |
| Bremen (Posen)  | 37  | 35      |
| Robbins         | 262 | 30      |

While Posen voted almost solidly against the proposition, Midlothian and Robbins voted just as solidly for it. With dozens of volunteer workers in Midlothian and Robbins getting out the votes, the result was scarcely in doubt.

But Midlothianites are grateful for the attitude shown by the colored voters in Robbins. Their attitude was "Midlothian helped us get our school, we will help them get theirs." This in spite of high taxes, special assessments and a large number of unemployed in Robbins. The vote carried at the Bremen school because colored voters from east of Kedzie ave. voted there.

By the issue of bonds school taxes will be reduced for the next four years, for only the interest on the debt must be met in those years. If it had not carried the whole educational system of the district was faced by collapse, for there probably would have been no money available for teacher's certificates.

On the Friday evening preceding the voting there was a regular school board meeting; it was adjourned due to the absence of the president, Otto Ziebell, Tuesday evening the board met and canvassed the returns.

Oak Forest Ladies

at Silver Tea

Horton received a prize for making the largest list of words from the words "The Ladies Aid". Mrs. E. Stuck was able to get the most clothes pins in a milk bottle and received the prize. Mrs. Stuck also entertained the ladies with several amusing readings. The Aid met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. Troy for their regular meeting. They planned to give an entertainment in January.

Woman's Club Activities

Posters are among the many things which interest the Midlothian Woman's Club. The 6th, 7th and 8th grades may compete, posters to be displayed: first, the second Friday in March at the Woman's Club in Midlothian; second at the annual meeting of the Third District of the Federation of Woman's clubs; to be held on March 31st; third at the exhibition of the State Federation of Woman's clubs to be held sometime in May. The place and exact date to be announced later.

The subject is to be "Winter", a 12x16 poster on an 18x26 background with three prizes to be given by the Midlothian Woman's club for the best posters. The first prize will be $3.00 or its equivalent in drawing material, the second, $2.00 and the third $1.00. The winner in the final exhibition will receive a painting for his school valued at $100 or more. To compete in the final exhibition these posters may be drawn with anything but chalk.

Mrs. Harry Clarke is Art Chairman of the Woman's Club and she will cooperate with the teachers here to aid a local boy or girl in winning a prize. According to Mrs. Clarke there is a great deal of talent in the village which competition should encourage.

The regular business meeting of the Woman's club at the Public Welfare meeting of the Third District of the Federation of Woman's clubs, Wednesday afternoon, December 10 at Chicago Heights. Mrs. Jesse Horney is the Child Welfare chairman and Miss Eleanor Gallagher is Public Welfare Chairman of the Midlothian Woman's club.

The members who attended the meeting were: Mrs. Jesse Horney, Mrs. E. J. Dillon, Miss Eleanor Gallagher, Mrs. James T. Hickey and Mrs. Harry Clarke.

An interesting talk on better motion pictures given by Mrs. Richard McClure State chairman, was one of the outstanding features of the day. She declared that 8 per cent of the movie-goers are children under 12 years. Parents invariably censure books for their children, but seldom movies.

Other speakers of note were Mrs. Silvis of Springfield on Public Welfare; J. T. Nicholson, Mgr. of the Chicago Red Cross on "The Rehabilitation of Disabled Ex-service Men"; Mrs. Kasehagen, District chairman, Presidents and Welfare chairman gave their experiences in their in-

Crawford Crash Survivor Said to Be Deranged

The inquest into the deaths of Father William Tracy and Thomas Gannon at the Crawford Ave. crossing last September was again continued, this time from December 10th to the 23rd when it will be held in Mohr, Hickey and Reiser's of Oak Forest. ## "Open-Go-Shut"; Old Time Dance Proves Popular

At 2 a. m. Sunday morning the 200-odd people who attended the Lions dance conceded that the "open-go-shuts" as handled by the Concertina club were very good musical instruments and that an old time dance was just the thing for entertainment. Altogether the Lions' premier appearance in Midlothian was admitted to be a credit to the club.

Waltzes and square dances brought out couples whose combined ages ran well over the hundred mark. But when the "broom dance" was revived, it gave everyone a chance to grab for a partner and the fun really began. The "ring dance" was another almost forgotten novelty.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Weinberger of Markham, with a combined age of 125 years, won the $5 in gold for the oldest couple on the floor. The son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stolz, Robert Stolz, and Mrs. Bernice Buduna of Benton Harbor, Michigan, won the gold prize for the best waltzers.

Now the Lions are busy preparing for their charter night banquet, to be held at the Hotel Hayes in the Woodlawn district of Chicago on December 29th, an affair for Lions and Lionesses. Chairman Searle promises it will be one "grand affair". Tickets are $2.25. The committee was appointed only two weeks ago.

P. T. A. Buys Xmas Candy for Pupils

Frank Oldhausen volunteered to mimeograph notices for future meetings, to be distributed through the pupils. Nice refreshments, sandwiches and chocolate milk, were served.

Wednesday the committee that had charge of the school float last summer met to discuss a purchase for the new school with the funds on hand—$122. A committee of Mrs. Belle Robinson, Mrs. J. C. Moore and Miss McNellis will investigate the cost of a curtain for the auditorium.

A CORRECTION

The restaurant quarters are neat and modern.

Legion Explains Position on Relief Body

The Legion is well pleased with the reception given their idea of a Community Welfare Association, and the co-operation received from the various local organizations.

The Legion took the initiative in organizing such a movement, and while they had certain definite ideas in regard to representation and territory to be covered, they feel that their leadership ended immediately upon effecting the organization; that the representatives of the various organizations should elect their own officers and decide upon the territory to be covered and it is now up to the newly formed association to decide their own policies.

It is the earnest hope of the Legion that the Relief Association will prove to be the most successful, harmonious and effective body in our community, and again desire to take this opportunity to thank all other local organizations for their splendid spirit of co-operation.

Do You Know This Man?

He served the colors honorably during the late war. Is now a respected citizen of your community. Was a member of your American Legion Post last year. As a Legionnaire he identified himself with those great programs of Disabled Veterans Relief, Care of Widows and Orphans, Community Service, National Defense and Better American Citizenship. His power for good is great. As a man and a veteran he will continue this good work, as a Legionnaire. The American Legion now needs this man. He must be found for early re-enrollment.

His 1931 dues are now DUE. He should pay them NOW—pridefully and voluntarily. He is YOU. Bring him in!

The Legion again wishes to remind ex-service men that it stands ready to secure copies of their discharge papers if originals have become lost; make application for Adjusted Compensation; in fact, handle all claims of any kind. We have information on file that you should all know about, so pay a visit to our headquarters, or get in touch with the Adjutant, phone Blue Island 3187, and your case will be handled to the best of our ability. Do you know that the government is offering you further insurance at a very low rate? It is doing this as well as other benefits.

Otto Ziebell Resigns School Presidency

Otto Ziebell resigned as president of the local school board Monday. His resignation reads as follows: "I hereby tender my resignation as president of the board of education of district 143 to take effect at once or when accepted. Reason: lack of time to give the office the necessary attention."

Monday evening the board accepted the resignation. A president pro tem will be chosen at each meeting of the board until the next regular election. Trustee Kasten was present representing the Midlothian board. He offered the suggestion that the school district pay half the cost of putting a surface on the road in front of the school. The board objected to the plan on the grounds that the village could surely spend $500 on a $130,000 improvement, but they took the proposition under advisement.

It was decided that school would close for the Christmas vacation on Thursday, December 23, and reopens January 5 in the new building. Work is being rushed on the building since the bond issue was passed. The board met again Thursday night.

Conservative Dinner Attended by 200

Over 200 dinners were served by the Conservative party organization on Thursday evening last week. A good, substantial meal was enjoyed by all present.

OBITUARY
Jeremiah Regan passed away December 7. He was the husband of the late Ellen; father of Daniel L. Mrs. Nora E. Howard and Mrs. Julia Jenkins and the late Ursula, John and Margaret.
The funeral was held at 9 a. m. Wednesday from the late residence at 14852 Hamlin ave., to St. Christophers, Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mr. Regan was a member of Visitation Court C. O. F. and St. Christophers Holy Name society. The funeral was under the direction of Mohr, Hickey and Reiser.

The following attended a Lion's banquet at the Hotel Sherman Tuesday evening: Rudolph Grill, Nelson H. Fetters, Robt. Mason, E. H. Searle and R. K. Cumming.

Relief Ass'n. Gives Bunco Saturday

A bunco and card party to raise funds for the unemployed and needy of Midlothian and surrounding territory will be given by the Relief Association at Goodfellowship hall, 147th and 43d ave., on Saturday evening at 8 P. M. Prizes will be given and refreshments served.

Contributions of prizes and the attendance of every interested organization is requested. Other communities can still come in by making application to the body.

At a meeting of the Relief Association at Legion Hall Monday night it was voted that only one representative and an alternate be recognized from each co-operating group.

Crestwood was taken in when the Woman's club of that village applied for membership. Several Oak Forest representatives were present and it is expected that Oak Forest will co-operate starting today.

A motion by Rev. Bosley of St. Lukes, carried, specifying that cards containing the names of assisting bodies, listed alphabetically be sent with baskets and coal.

Investigators Gallagher and Berdan were notified to turn over to A. A. Terry the names of able-bodied heads of families.

K. Sidell offered his resignation as secretary and J. F. Entrop was appointed to serve until the next meeting, tonight, when a new secretary-treasurer will be elected.

Men were hired by the association to fill in the ditch and lay tile in front of Donato's barber shop.

Four Stars for Legion Coffee; Eight for Pie

Anyone who wanted to stay hungry Wednesday night had a hard time saying "No, no, no" at the Legion supper to the Legionnaire waiters who insisted on everyone trying everything on the menu. And that was plenty. Roast beef, mashed potatoes, peas, coffee, apple pie and cheese. Also innumerable other items that won't rhyme.

The Woman's Club was crowded during the entire evening with diners, diners-to-be and diners of the merits of the various dishes, viz: the ubiquitous and ever-smiling Legionnaire waiters.

If the Legion has another supper like that and promises as much good coffee and as delicate and delicious apple pie as Wednesday night's, the whole darn township will be there. NOTE: This is not propaganda; the writer has not been subsidized by the American Legion, but at the next A. L. supper he won't be satisfied with only three cups of Java.

OAK FOREST INMATE FALLS UNDER CAR

While driving their Ford sedan north on Cicero Ave., at 161st St., Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hayek of 2225 S. 58th Court, Cicero, saw a pedestrian just ahead. As they came within a few feet of him, he stumbled and fell toward the car, the hood striking him.

Mr. Hayek, who is a Rapid Transit motorman in Chicago, carried the victim in his car to the infirmary where it was learned he was Jesse B. Grant, 61, an inmate. Examination disclosed his stomach had been ruptured and that he had suffered severe shock. The injuries resulted in death, Sunday night.

Mr. Hayek, who himself notified the County Police, was not held. A coroner's jury Monday decided the death was accidental.

Board Cooperates With School on Improving Road

Tuesday night the village board, on motion by Sidell, offered to match the school board dollar for dollar in improving Harding ave., and 146th St., to provide access to the new school.

They also voted to spread cinders on the alleys in the McIntosh subdivision. G. Kehl Sons, contractors, were requested to finance; the money to be spent under the direction of the street and alley committee, who will hire the unemoloved thru the Relief association, at 50c an hour. The motion was made by Jehens and carried unanimously.

A request from E. Chapin to vacate an alley in Ruth Park was held up pending the dedication to the village of the right-of-way to complete Abbottsford road.

Both the fire department ordinance and the building code are scheduled for the next meeting.

Blue Island Offers Help In Crisis

Saturday the editor of the MESSENGER visited Hill Lakin of the Suburban Star and Mr. Frazier at the Elks Club to learn how the relief drive was functioning in Blue Island.

There the Elks club organized the drive and donated $1000 to start things moving. Since then practically every fraternal and denominational group in the city has co-operated, but political groups as such are not eligible. Boy scouts are running errands and high school pupils assist. Rooms in the Elks club, are filled with clothing, the phone is busy and Mr. Frazier and a score of assistants are busy taking care of calls.

"As Midlothian is organizing its own relief association," said Mr. Frazier, "we will naturally refer calls from there to your body. If you find you cannot care for all the needy, refer them to us. Rest assured we will do our part—it is all one big community and charity has no boundaries."

By judicious inquiry we learned that Frank Kasten, mayor of Blue Island, is head of the association there. Of course some objection was raised by politicians, but this disappeared when it was apparent that political capital was not being made of the activities of the group.

With the prospects bright for a successful bunco party Saturday evening more cash will be available. To date the following organizations have joined the Relief Association:

Altar and Rosary Society, American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Conservatives, Cook County Welfare, Drama Club of St. Lukes, East End Development, Fire Department, Goodfellowship Club, Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church, Ladies Aid of St. Lukes, Lions Club, P. T. A. Welfare Department, Woman's Club of Crestwood, Woman's Club of Midlothian.

For immediate aid baskets and coal help. But, in our opinion, the great need is for temporary jobs. If you have some little jobs around home, phone Terry and have a job listed for the neediest man. If you haven't one, invent one.

To do its part the MESSENGER opens its want ad columns free to any person desiring work (who is not in business) or anyone who has a job to offer. Names need not be used, only some initial being used to identify the advertiser.

This is an appeal for work; the story of an ex-service man with six children—out of work—frankly stating that he has been wearing out his tires on his old car trying to locate a job.

Two years ago his wife was feeding the needy; now all they have is that which is given by the County and the Relief Association.

This man is more than willing to work. Can't some one MAKE a job for him?

Here is one of a little girl, she's only nine years old, but she has already known the inconvenience and pain of want. She walks two miles to and from school with as the sole covering and protection for her feet, made-over stockings and galoshes.

Hunger here, with wistful eyes and gnawing pains. Four children who were lunchless each day until a fairy godfather provided a pint of milk a child each noon. Then mothers came to the rescue by slipping an extra sandwich or so in the children's lunch; these were passed on. And kindness—or shall we call it charity?—eased the longing.

Unbelievable you will exclaim that while you have the comforts of warmth, plenty of food, sufficient room, and to spare, there should be among us an accumulation of three families in one home—crowded, hungry cold.

The aged grandparents were caring for four children of a deceased daughter. A short time ago the ex-service son came home bringing his three children to swell the total to eleven persons.

Sunday a bag of coal and groceries were provided, but how long will they last?

Windjamming Ships Feature Lyric Movie

Sea stories seem to have a special influence with Milton Sills. His first big success was made in "The Sea Hawk", which definitely established him as one of the foremost players on the screen. And now, in the Fox Movietone talking version of Jack London's stirring novel of marine adventure, "The Sea Wolf", he scores what many critics are acclaiming as his finest picture role.

"The Sea Wolf" which makes its bow to local audiences at the Lyric Theatre tonight, introduces a unique triangle in the persons of a domineering brute of a schooner captain, a young waster who is shanghaied abroad as the vessel is leaving a Japanese fishing port, and a mysterious girl who goes along in a Quixotic desire to help the youngster. The drama that ensues as the three are cooped up on the schooner during her long cruise to the Aleutian sealing grounds is said to be the most breathless of any talkie of recent months, and various fights in Sills' best style enliven the action.

U. OF I. BROADCASTS
EDUCATIONAL TALKS

Station WILL Offers Music,
Plays, Athletics, Etc.

Eight years ago in March the Federal Department of Commerce authorized the University of Illinois to broadcast over its station, then assigned the call letters of WRM. Today the University still operates its radio station for educational purposes, although its call letters have been changed to WILL.

The present broadcasting equipment and building, valued at approximately $50,000, is known as the Roger Sullivan Memorial Station. It was presented to the University by Boetius Sullivan of Chicago in memory of his father.

Educational talks by members of the College of Agriculture staff are broadcast each night, while on the afternoon program radio listeners have the privilege of hearing the advice of specialists in commerce, engineering, political science, anthropology, and education.

In addition to the educational talks WILL also brings some of the best music on the Illinois campus to the citizens of the state. The University concert band, the Men's and Women's Glee club, the Choral society, and School of Music faculty and students broadcast regularly over the station.

Each Monday afternoon Prof. A. A. Harding, director of the University bands for the last 25 years, and his concert band has thousands of listeners for their half hour broadcast. This is the same band made famous by John Philip Sousa's assertion that it was the "greatest college band."

An additional feature carried by the station this year is the Story Hour for Shut-ins every Tuesday afternoon, with members of the public speaking staff furnishing readings for those persons confined to the inside.

Once a month, on the first and third Thursdays, WILL listeners have the opportunity of hearing the Story Hour for Shut-ins every Tuesday afternoon, with members of the public speaking staff furnishing readings for those persons confined to the inside.

In addition to its daily programs, the station also broadcasts football and basketball games and special concerts and lectures at the University. From the deluge of mail that poured into the station after one basketball game, it has been estimated that at least 10,000 persons listen to the cage contests.

WILL operates on a frequency of 890 kilocycles or an equivalent of 337 meters from 5 to 6 o'clock and from 7:30 to 8 o'clock daily, and from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock every Sunday morning.

One of the longest citations ever read at the awarding of that highest of Government decorations for extraordinary valor in action—the Congressional Medal of Honor—dwells on the "undaunted bravery, gallant soldierly conduct and leadership" displayed by Lieutenant Dwite H. Schaffner in the Meuse-Argonne drive which Lieutenant Schaffner is to describe personally during the "Chevrolet Chronicles" hour over stations as shown above.

Commanding Company K, of the 306th Infantry, in the drive on St. Hubert's Pavilion on Sept. 28, 1918, Lieutenant Schaffner's company forged ahead of its supporting companies by hand-to-hand fighting and was hemmed in on three sides by the enemy. In holding this precarious position, the citation says, Lieutenant Schaffner made three efforts to locate an enemy machine gun which was causing heavy casualties, and, finally locating it, personally silenced the gun, killing or wounding the crew.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, ace of American aces and recently decorated with the Congressional Medal of Honor, will act as host during the broadcast, and musical numbers arranged and directed by Frank Black and Gustave Haenschen will complete the half-hour program.

Advertising Order Starts Three Plants

The extent to which the industrial structure of America leans upon the automobile, was vividly illustrated following the placing of an order incidental to announcing Chevrolet's new 1931 models.

The order called for 171,846 feet of material, or a ribbon of canvas 33 miles long and 36 inches wide, to be made up into banners for dealer's showroom displays and for signs to be used in sales meetings being held throughout the country.

Less than 5,000 yards of the material were available in Detroit. Due to low inventories resulting from curtailed operations this year, a search of wholesalers, bleacheries and mills in strategic parts of the country, revealed a supply of white canvas on hand still 20,000 yards short of filling the order.

To meet the demand within the specified time, a mill in South Carolina which had lain idle got into production on a 24-hour day schedule. Mills in other parts of the country were put to work overtime. To produce the finished banners and drops, two plants manned with artists sign painters, carpenters and laborers had to work on three eight-hour shift day.

BLUE PARK GUN CLUB

The final shoot for the prize cup of 1930 will be held at the Blue Park Gun Club, Markham, this Sunday. Four names are now engraved on the cup and these four will "shoot it out" to determine the winner. A new cup will be provided for 1931.

Election of officers took place last week. H. G. Flotz of Harvey was elected president, Winfield Roesner of Markham vice president and field captain, and Leonard Ames of Blue Island secretary treasurer.

During the past year 80,000 shells were fired by the 144 active members. Two years ago they started with $20 in the treasury; now they have an addition to the clubhouse, four traps instead of one, fine grounds and a nice treasury.

The Mud of Midlothian

Tickets for the Lion's Dance read, "Dancing 8 P. M. to 12 A. M." Why in thunder didn't they get home until 2:30 A. M.? Uncle Casey promises an investigation.

Bill Kreis' moustache, peeking out on the world in the shyest, sweetest manner imaginable. In color a cross between a late autumn sunset and a piece of toast.

Clare Moore explodes with the announcement that Gordon Adler is in a business that will get you eventually and the Woerheide Brothers are in real estate, which nowadays is no business at all.

If Clare keeps up that way Uncle Casey will hand over the shovel to him and he won't be puzzled any longer as to just who excavates the Mud.

Messrs. Cumming and Fredholm tossed a loin bone to the Lions at the dance and that's why Clarence Mills was taking an inventory of his icebox at three o'clock Sunday morning.

Lion Fredholm wore a veil which Uncle Casey wishes strenuously to deny was a segment of the awning Mr. Fredholm worked on for a week last summer.

Editor Andrews has bought a new pipe. And that means no more hair cuts till after New Years.

The associate editor is smoking three packs of Camels a day. Which means he'll wear that cap till creation cracks.

Unless the editor used his head while guarding the Lions wardrobe Saturday night and Sunday morning.

We see in last week's issue of the McHenry Plaindealer that Mrs. Wm. Bishop entertained the members of the Cad Club.

We foresee in the next weeks issue of the McHenry Plaindealer that editor Mosher has left for Yap, Patagonia or Hoono Swaire.

Ernie and Axel.

41st Avenue is gone but Karlov Avenue carries on in even greater style — its the only street in Midlothian that has a Pierce-Arrow.

It should be renamed Karlov Block.

Al Weinberg, the best known debating club in Midlothian.

The sermon ended; hastily the mourners brushed their tears away, the organ pealed a solemn dirge, then stopped. Over the vast edifice an awesome hush fell, life for a moment ceased to be. And then high and clear whistled the whisper, "I hear it all happened to him because he asked, 'What happened to your horse car, Uncle Casey?'"

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.
Rural Nursing Service of Cook Co.

We received a very encouraging letter from Mrs. W. C. Balch, the state chairman of the Parent and Teacher Association, she mailed the health certificate won by Weymouth Tomes age 7 at our Pre-School Roundup last May. This is the first certificate won in Bremen township and we are glad to have even one, and hope that next year it will be many.

Mrs. Balches letter said in part, "You will find the certificate enclosed for the one little girl you mentioned as having her defects corrected before starting to school. If every one of our 12500 P. T. A.'s in the state congress each sent one child to school in good physical condition — then there would be 12500 healthy happy beginners through the Summer Roundup".

She further stated, "I am always glad to hear from Summer Roundup chairmen and hope that Midlothian, when they get into that nice new school, will carry on the Roundup in 1931.

Among suggestions for providing employment given by the governor's committee on unemployment and relief is that this is an exceptionally good time to have old and dilapidated buildings torn down. General Chairman Getz says: "In many cases these buildings are fire hazards. They are always eyesores and detriments to the communities in which they are located, and frequently they are white elephants on the hands of their owners. Every one will profit if owners start wrecking them at this time." One Chicago firm has started tearing down thirteen buildings.

Unveiling of the Gold Star Mother memorial in the northeast corner of the Centennial building at Springfield will occur Thursday, December 11. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson will greet the Gold Star Mothers; Edward A. Hayes, Decatur, past state American Legion commander, will pay tribute from the Legion, and Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Chicago, from the A. E. F., will present the statue; Mrs. William Mann, Kankakee, will make the acceptance address; and Mrs. J. T. Neilson, Peoria, will unveil the memorial.

The annual Illinois day meeting of the State Historical society was held December 3 in the auditorium of the Centennial building at Springfield. The principal address was given by Edgar DeWitt Jones, D.D., Detroit, Mich., on "Educational Pathfinders of Illinois," and Mrs. Eli Dixon, state regent of the Illinois society, D. A. R., presented Miss Owenetta Edwards, of Normal, the 1930 gold medal, state prize for best essay on "Early Schools and Teachers in My County."

Col. Cornelius R. Miller, director of the state department of public works and buildings for eight years under former Gov. Len Small, died December 1 at Kankakee, the city of his birth. His health was failing at the time Governor Emmerson was elected and he tendered his resignation immediately. During his directorship he devoted a large amount of time to the large highway construction program then in progress.

Executive committees representing seven automobile clubs in Illinois affiliated with the A. A. A. met in Springfield and, after a conference, decided to recommend several changes in the proposed driver's license law.

Among the important cases coming before the state Supreme court now in session is one having to do with Modern Woodmen litigation regarding increased rates on insurance. Objectors in Illinois to the rate increase have now divided into two groups, the original state association of the protest group and one calling itself the Illinois Branch of the Rate Increase Protest committee.

Prof. B. Smith Hopkins is back at the University of Illinois after a year of study in the West. The announcement has been made by the university that he will "direct more research work on illinium, the only rare earth element ever discovered in America. This year the Illinois inorganic chemists will devote their time in securing a more abundant source of the rare element, and to the perfecting of the X-ray equipment, which is used in making the final analysis of the element."

The board of managers of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, in session at Bloomington, recognized in resolutions the fact that the present economic depression is resulting in serious handicap to many children through deprivation of food and clothing, and stated that assistance to needy school children through student aid committees is an established congress activity. In Chicago parent-teacher organizations are receiving old clothing, sorting and classifying it, and sending garments needing cleaning and mending to a central station. In charge of the woman's division of the governor's commission on unemployment relief, of which Mrs. Kellogg Fairbanks is chairman. Distribution will be made through the general charities.

Jury lists made at the September meetings of county boards of supervisors should be discarded and new lists made in which women would be recognized in accordance with the adoption of the law authorizing women on juries, says Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom in an opinion rendered to State's Attorney Robert P. Shonkwiler at Monticello. He adds that women should be placed on grand juries as well as petit juries, with the proportion subject to decision by the county board.

Illinois' new reformatory for women near Dwight is now open. County and circuit judges, it is expected, will now commit women delinquents to this institution instead of to county jails.

The Illinois State Horticultural society held its annual meeting in Urbana December 10, 11 and 12. Among out of the state speakers were W. S. Campfield, secretary of the Virginia state society; A. R. Chase, county agent at Wenatchee, Wash.; and J. A. Barron, manager Fennville Fruit exchange, Fennville, Mich.

The total number who voted at the November election was 2,332,696, a record breaker for an off-year election, according to a tabulation of the returns in Secretary of State William J. Stratton's office. The revenue amendment to the constitution received 371,812 favorable votes and 513,861 unfavorable. The conservation bond issued received a majority of the votes cast upon it, 886,971 to 809,434, but was defeated as a majority of the votes cast for members of the legislature was necessary. Amendments to the banking act, women on jury and the other jury proposition carried. On the public policy questions figures showed: Repeal Eighteenth amendment, for, 1,054,432; against 551,741; modify Volstead act, for, 968,652; against, 506,973; repeal state prohibition act, for, 1,060,004; against, 523,130.

If present sources of highway income are not disturbed, approximately $45,000,000 worth of work should be completed in 1931, according to information given Gov. Louis L. Emmerson by the division of highways. Highway funds are received from motor license fees, federal aid and motor fuel taxes. Presented to the governor with these figures was a tentative setup of the way this money would be expended: For new contracts, $30,000,000, approximately $12,375,000 of which would go for completing the road program outlined by the citizens' committee of the metropolitan area of Chicago for vital traffic relief and approximately $17,625,000 for paving and railroad grade separation projects in the state outside of the metropolitan area; and for uncompleted contracts, $15,000,000, several of which were late this year to aid sections suffering from drought or unemployment.

The state association of agricultural fair officials will meet at Danville January 8 and 9, at which time dates for district and county fairs in Illinois will be selected.

Hastening of action leading to the construction of the state armory for Company K, One Hundred and Thirty-first Infantry, I. N. G., at Cairo is being pushed by C. Herrick Hammond, supervising architect in the department of purchases and supplies, who states that proposals for this building will be available to prospective bidders by January 19. Bids will be received February 3, enabling the state to place the contract immediately so as to help the unemployment situation.

Reports that 100 head of horses had died from forage poisoning near Herin brought the statement from Dr. R. E. Nesbitt, assistant state veterinarian, after an investigation, that acute indigestion is the prevailing live stock ailment there. Soft or immature corn has been responsible for many cases of indigestion which, though serious, are curable if given proper treatment promptly. Brain complications, which are symptoms of forage infection, were not present in these cases.

Examinations for assistant physicians, bakers and storekeepers are to be held by the state civil service commission December 18, for which applications will be received up to December 8. Assembled examinations will be held December 20 for university junior stenographers and for university junior typists, applications to be made 10 days prior to the examination. Examinations for guards at the Joliet and Statesville penitentiaries are also to be held, applications being received up to December 12.

Finding that reports of highway accidents show the predominating cause to be lack of caution on the part of motorists entering or crossing arterial highways, Chief Walter L. Moody of the state highway police has issued orders for rigid enforcement of the law requiring drivers to observe "Stop" signs, compelling them to come to a full stop before entering the lanes of traffic. Over one week-end at the intersection of routes 25 and 121, near Tuscola, highway police made 24 arrests and $232 in fines was collected, with a number of cases continued.

An appeal to the Supreme court has been granted Henry Shaw, Mattoon Democrat, who was at first declared elected by 54 majority as treasurer of Coles county but lost by four votes to A. C. Alexander, Charleston Republican, in a later recount.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has turned over to the American Legion relief fund $643.43, federal compensation of which he had been made beneficiary by Vladimir Andryeak who died May 20, an ex-soldier whom the governor had never seen.

Morse farm's herd of Guernsey cattle at Libertyville was highest in the state the past year in butterfat production. Average of 49.5 pounds was established. The herd was second high in the United States.

An opinion rendered by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom that James (Fur) Sammons, Chicago gangster, was at large through legal error of former pardon boards, made it possible for W. C. Jones, chairman of the present board, to have him returned to Joliet prison. Originally, Sammons was sentenced to hang but in 1904 this sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and in 1923 life sentence was commuted to fifty years, this action being followed a month later by parole and in 1926 he was given a final discharge.

EVENING WRAPS OF PANNE SATIN; VELVET COATS OF DISTINCTION

A Lustrous Panné Satin Wrap.

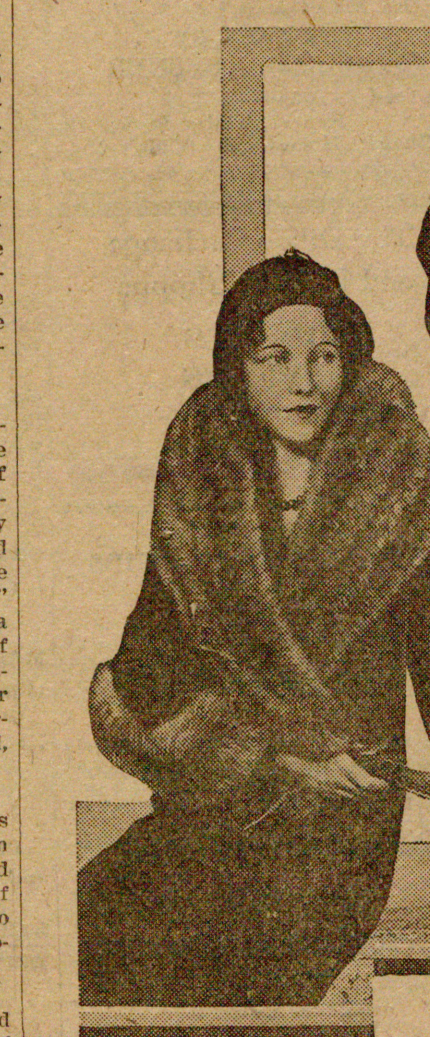

As to formal fashions the story centers mainly about the gorgeous evening wraps which enfold society as it lends its brilliant presence to the festive events which go to make up the program of a midwinter season.

The gown may be a classic in simplicity, but when it comes to the wrap posed over it, then the picture bursts into a scene of exotic beauty in which resplendent fabrics and sumptuous furs play a spectacular part.

In seeking out the loveliest the world affords in way of materials for the formal wrap designers are impressed with the enchantment of satin as it glimmers and gleams under the evening light.

There is a new, heavy, lustrous panne satin which is a particular favorite. Evening ensembles of this delectable weave have become a theme of fascinating possibilities. Usually a classic interpretation is given to the gown. The skirt is apt to accent long flaring hemlines and to be manipulated with intricate seaming. The décolletage will, of course, be extreme with perhaps a diamond clip at the shoulder, or shoulder straps of brilliants, or most likely the neckline will emphasize the quaint beauty of the drop-off-the-shoulder effect which fashion favors this season.

As to the length of the wrap of self-satin which is to complete the evening ensemble, it is merely a matter of choice. It may be one of the short "wrappy" types, or it may develop a three-quarter length at the front, sweeping to graceful depths to the back. Of course the sleeves will be interesting from a novelty standpoint and they are quite sure to be generously large. The height of luxury will be expressed in the elaborate fur trimmings which may be a stunning collar and may or may not add huge cuffs and wide borderings.

The model in upper picture is of lustrous panne satin such as Paris designers are sponsoring so enthusiastically for the evening wrap. One may picture it in any lovely tone, either pale pink, peach, delicate blue, egg-shell, or white. Favor for white, both for wrap and for gown, is pressed on every side. Among evening modes of distinction the very latest are the jacket ensembles of sheer white velvet or lustrous white satin, the same lavishly trimmed with white fox or ermine or that which is the most recent to be exploited—white trimmed with exquisite chinchilla, for light gray has suddenly come into prominence as an evening color.

More About Velvet.
Luxurious in matter of the velvet of which it is made, sumptuous as to the fur which trims it, beautiful when it comes to "lines," thus does the midwinter coat add its chapter to the book of current fashions.

Time was when one good warm winter coat sufficed for the season with the majority of women. But we grow more sophisticated—speaking in the present tense, in order to meet the demands of fashion, style-minded women must needs acquire a complete wardrobe of coats in order that they may be cloaked to occasion. Sports coats for travel and other of outdoor sportsy events, coats of ultra opulence for formal evening functions, and for dressy afternoon wear types of refined elegance such as are pictured below, thus does the mode, as now is, demand a whole program of coats.

What more flattering to fair women than rich velvet trimmed with handsome fur?—a query not yet answered in the annals of fashion. And so the world at large is voicing its admiration for the new coats as the midwinter style parade presents them to us. The models illustrated typify the present trend to greater elegance. Each of these coats is styled with consummate artistry.

The beauty of the fur trimmings on these coats is sensed at first sight. The model on the seated figure indulges in lavish collar and cuffs which reflect that radiant brown tone so characteristic of the now-so-voguish Japanese mink fur. The cuffs extend far up on the sleeves as most fur cuffs are wont to do this season.

The model to the right is a smart version for the young matron. Black velvet with two-toned lapin fur, beige and black sand to be explicit, combine to accomplish a striking effect. The inevitable shawl collar extends to the waistline. The fur banding on the sleeves is positioned high enough to preserve the slenderizing effect of the closely fitting sleeves each of which fastens with an ivory and onyx button.

"Women get away with murder," remarked Jack Doyle, fight promoter, "because it is generally understood that they don't mean what they say. This always gives them a loophole when things go wrong.

"Funny part of it is that the women themselves do not seem to think their remarks should be taken literally. Like Gwenny.

"What's the trouble between you and Freddie? a friend asked her.

"I'm sure I don't know," said Gwenny. "He hasn't been to see me for a week, just because I told him I never wanted to see him again."—Exchange.

Hunt Homewood Cop In Round-up Of Car Theft Ring

Two men are at liberty on bonds of $2,000 each awaiting arraignment on a charge of receiving stolen property and Herbert Kitterer, former Homewood policeman, was being sought after authorities uncovered an alleged automobile theft ring here.

Homewood authorities hold a warrant for Kitterer's arrest. He is charged with violation of section 35 of the criminal statute—receiving and disposing of stolen property.

Following two weeks of investigation Officer Leo Woodward Sunday night arrested Edwin Henke, 24, at the roller skating rink in south Homewood and took charge of a new Oldsmobile automobile which Henke was driving.

After questioning Henke at the police station here he signed a confession in which he stated that he had purchased the new automobile from Policeman Kitterer for a total sum of $160.

Henke admitted, according to police, that he had first purchased a set of new tires from Kitterer for $60, later buying the automobile for an additional $100.

Police Chief Walter Gleason, working in conjunction with the auto detail of Chicago, has traced the automobile to its former owner in Chicago. The car was stolen there several weeks ago, presumably by a gang of Chicago auto thieves, Chief Gleason said.

Henke admitted stripping the original tires, wheels and fenders from the automobile he allegedly purchased from Kitterer and replaced them with parts designed to disguise the car. When seized the automobile bore yellow wire wheels and a different style fenders. The motor number had been effaced from the engine block and a different one substituted.

Investigating further Chief Gleason and Sergeant Charles Gleason of the Chicago detail, scrutinized a new Ford coupe driven by Ernest Dumm, 26, of 18350 South Morris street. Dumm's car proved to have been stolen from James McGuire of Chicago. Dumm likewise was placed under arrest on a charge of receiving stolen property and admitted purchasing the vehicle from Kitterer, police said.

Both Dumm and Henke were released on $2,000 bond. Property was offered as bond in both instances. The men were to be arraigned before Judge J. C. Howe here next Wednesday. Assistant State's Attorney Donegan will represent the state at the hearing.

Monday morning Officer Kitterer failed to report for work. He had left his home, taking his automobile with him, inquiry showed. Thereupon Kitterer was suspended from the police force and a warrant issued for his arrest. His motorcycle was taken by the village to satisfy a $200 debt.

The Oldsmobile car found in the possession of Henke had been locked away in Kitterer's garage for sometime before its sale to Henke, Chief Gleason said. The missing Officer had approached several other persons in Homewood recently, offering to procure automobiles for them at a "reasonable" price, according to Gleason.

If Kitterer is taken into custody the local authorities hope to obtain information from him which will trace down the gang which stole the automobiles and later sold them here.

Following the suspension of Kitterer, Christ Suhs has been engaged to fill his place on the force temporarily.

—THE HOMEWOOD NEWS
The trial above mentioned has been postponed and no date set for its hearing.

Tinley Junior Garden Club Notes

By Fern Fulotn

The Junior Garden Club held their regular meeting Saturday, Dec. 6th at the Village Hall with a large attendance. Some of the members read a very good report about our trip to Garfield Park Conservatory, International Harvesting Mills and Lincoln Conservatory. The meeting was adjourned and followed by a real Xmas party. Games were played and prizes awarded.

Mrs. Hug and Mrs. Florence Anderson had the hall decorated for the occasion and also a beautiful lighted Xmas tree. We were treated to a delicious lunch of cake and ice cream.

Mrs. Clara Goessel, Mrs. Hug and Mrs. Alice Anderson donated the cakes for which we thank them very kindly. As our guests we had two members of the Tinley Park Garden Club, Mrs. Wm. Funk and Mrs. John Swisher.

Mrs. Rudolph Hug presented each member with a gift, a Garden Book, which was greatly appreciated and all had a very delightful time.

Mrs. Swisher had a lovely surprise for each one present. They were hand made book markers with the club emblem, the violet on each one. Thanks to Mr. Wm. Funk for the use of the hall and to Mr. Uthe's part in fixing the fire.

As it was too early to have a real Christmas Tree Mr. J. C. Funk donated an artificial tree which very nicely helped make the party a success.

The Junior Gardeners had the pleasure of seeing Mrs. Clarence Goessel's poinsettia plant.

IN MEMORY OF OUR GRANDMA LEPPLA

I think of her in her home over there,

By the river Jordan of light,
Where the Saints are mortal and fair,

And clothed in garments of white.
Over there, just over there,
I think of her at home over there.

I think of her husband and children over there;

Who before her the journey have trod;

Of the songs that they'll sing on the air,

In their home in the palace of God,
Over there, yes over there,
I think of her husband and children over there.

She will soon be at home over there
For the end of her journey is there
Many dear to her heart over there
Watching and waiting for her to come to them.

Over there, yes over there,
She will be at home over there.

Car Destroyed By Fire

Martin Henderson, of Joliet and three companions escaped serious injury Monday night when Henderson's car skidded from the pavement of Lincoln highway a mile east of New Lenox, turned over twice and burned completely.

Henderson is well known to Joliet fight-fans as an ex-boxer and referee in amateur bouts. His companions were: David Rosen, Walker hotel, junior lightweight boxer; Stephen Bablic, Y. M. C. A. and Robert McHugh, 304 Nicholson street.

They were returning from Michigan City, Ind., where Rosen fought the windup against Jackie Sanders, Beaver Falls, Pa., in a professional card at the Michigan City Elks club.

Henderson said his car skidded when he bent down to adjust a winter heater, turned around twice and then rolled over the same number of times. It was on fire before its passengers could get out. They kicked the glass from the windows and made their escape with only minor cuts and bruises.

Beagly Hires New

Service Man

Robert Harvey of Mount Vernon, Illinois has entered the employ of Clarence E. Beagley as salesman. He went to the University of Illinois and is also a graduate of the RCA institutes. RCA recommends him as a very competent radio and electrical service man.

Slaves Were Shaved

A clean-shaven face in the East was originally a sign of servitude. Old pictures show kings and conquerors heavily bearded and with long hair, while their slaves and captives are clean-shaven and close-cropped. The Greeks and the Romans later discarded "face fungus," as it gave their enemies a hand-hold in the close fighting, which was, of course, the rule in those days.
